

EDITORIAL

Within the 2030 Agenda institutionalization scenario in the Brazilian Judiciary, the central theme of the 6th issue of the Judicial School of TRT4 Journal brings the 80 YEARS OF THE LABOR JUSTICE: institutional reaffirmation in the face of the UN Agenda 2030 objectives.

Among the papers that make up the thematic dossier, we highlight the debate on labor protection for sex workers and intermittent work. Still within the perspective of decent work, the platform economics is discussed in a scenario of change in the business activity and in the world of work, with the aim of enabling economic growth. Moreover, the qualification of labor relations is addressed in order to develop human rights in companies.

In the Covid-19 pandemic context that is occurring in global proportions, the objects of study are the employment contract termination based on the emergency labor legislation, as well as the occupational diseases resulting from the disregard for social distancing rules.

As usual, the issue brings other relevant subjects to Labor Justice, namely: the historic rescue of the workers' strike brought in the novel Germinál, by Émile Zola, in face of the jurisprudence of the Superior Labor Court (TST), the legal security in employment relations and the combat against judicial activism in this Specialized Justice, Convention no. 190 of the International Labor Organization (ILO) and its emancipatory potential, in addition to the scope of the employment relationship and the general clauses.

We hope that the articles contribute to the dialectical debate of relevant issues that involve contemporary labor, in order to contribute to the improvement of the justice provision and the incessant search for justice and inequalities reduction.

We renew our acknowledgments to the authors for their confidence in sharing their studies in this journal, as well as to the reviews and advisors for their collaboration throughout the editorial process.

We wish you an excellent reading!

Leandro Krebs Gonçalves

Editor

José Felipe Ledur

Vice-Editor